The Wall

Bringing local art into everyday spaces

A curated platform that turns hotel lobbies, offices, hospitals and other premium spaces into rotating, shoppable exhibitions of original local art. Validated in market; ready to scale from Amman to the Gulf.

VERDICT · GO Scale the validated hotel model to 10 anchor venues in Amman, then expand to the UAE in 2028 and Saudi Arabia in 2029.

ROOM I

Executive summary

People should not have to visit a gallery to find local art. The Wall brings the art to the places they already are, and makes every piece available to buy with one scan.

The model has been validated in market through a public exhibition in Amman and a signed commercial agreement with a hotel partner. Partner details are available on request. Each installation creates value for three parties at once: the venue shows that it supports local culture, the artist gains an audience and a real chance to sell, and the visitor discovers art without seeking it out.

The numbers. The base case reaches $3.5M revenue and a 21% EBITDA margin by 2031, with EBITDA positive from 2030. A lean first year keeps the peak funding need to $399K; we recommend raising $520K.[†] Across Jordan, the UAE and Saudi Arabia, the addressable market is about $475M a year, of which $121M is serviceable.

Who pays, and who decides. Space owners, individual buyers and sponsors pay The Wall. Interior designers and architects, who shape new hotels, offices and hospitals, do not pay; they decide where the owner's art budget goes, so The Wall works with them as a channel.

Why Jordan first. Jordan's serviceable market is small, at about $4.6M a year, but it is the lowest-cost place to refine the playbook. The UAE and Saudi Arabia pay 2.2 to 2.5 times more per venue and carry the growth.

ROOM II

Market validation

The model was validated in market ahead of this raise through two pilots led by the founder.

Two pilots, two different questions answered

Partner names and supporting material available on request

PILOT	FORMAT	WHAT IT CONFIRMED
Public exhibition	Works by local artists exhibited at an established cultural venue in Amman	Artists are willing to take part, and audiences engage with art outside a gallery setting
Commercial pilot	Signed agreement with a hotel to install a curated collection at its main entrance	A commercial venue will commit its most visible space to the program

Each installation creates value for three parties

The Wall curates, installs, promotes and handles the sale

VENUE

Hotel or space

Positions itself as a supporter of art and the local community. Gains a lobby that changes every season, content for PR, and 10% of every sale.

ARTIST

Local artist

Reaches guests and professionals who rarely visit galleries. Gains a stronger chance of sale and keeps 65% of the price.

VISITOR

Guest or buyer

Encounters art in the course of a stay or a working day, learns the story behind each piece, and buys it with one scan.

The Wall connects the three: curation, installation, promotion, checkout and payouts.

ROOM IV

Market context

Demand drivers line up in all three markets: rising visitor traffic in Jordan, and a Gulf where corporate and government art spending is growing while the global art market contracts.

AGBI [5]

Competitive position. No one in Jordan runs rotating, shoppable art programs across commercial venues at scale; the alternatives are ad-hoc art buying by hotels, interior designers sourcing pieces project by project, and a small number of galleries. In the Gulf, art consultancies already serve corporates, so The Wall competes there on rotation, local-artist storytelling and in-venue sales data rather than on collection building alone.

ROOM V

Market size

About $475M a year is addressable, $121M is serviceable, and the 2031 plan captures $3.5M, or 2.9% of the serviceable market.

Sizing is bottom-up: target venues per segment, multiplied by the annual revenue each venue can generate (program fee plus sales commission). It is not a share of the global art market. UAE and Saudi values apply 2.5× and 2.2× the Jordan price.

FIG. 3 The 2031 plan needs under 3% of the serviceable market

Total	3,912	19,227	25,979

Corporate offices are where the Gulf budgets sit, which is why corporate art is a core revenue stream. Jordan's 14% share of its serviceable market by 2031 is ambitious for a home market, another reason growth is planned to come from the Gulf.

ROOM VI

Business model

The Wall works on consignment, so it carries no inventory risk. Venue fees cover the fixed cost of curation and installation; sales commission grows with the network.

FIG. 4 How every artwork sale is shared

Within the 60–70% / 20–30% / up to 10% ranges set in the brand proposition

Why venues pay a fee. Sales per venue are uncertain in the first year. A fee makes each venue contribution-positive from day one, at about 83% contribution margin, and keeps The Wall from depending on a sale in every rotation.

WHY DESIGNERS AND ARCHITECTS TAKE PART

They will not add a new business line, and The Wall does not ask them to. The proposition works where art is already in their scope:

- Hotels, large offices and hospitals. Art is a standard line in the furniture, fixtures and equipment (FF&E) or fit-out package. Designers already have to source it, often through consultants or overseas catalogues and under deadline. The Wall delivers a curated, sized and priced selection in 5 working days, then supplies and installs it.
- A better project. Local art helps meet hotel brand standards for a sense of place, photographs well, and gives the firm a story to publish.
- No cost and no risk. The owner or contractor contracts with and pays The Wall; the designer recommends and approves.
- Full disclosure. Many firms cannot accept supplier commissions. Each firm chooses either a disclosed 10% referral fee or a 10% discount passed to its client.

Where art is outside their scope, as in small office fit-outs and most residential work, The Wall goes directly to the owner. Designers and architects are measured on projects referred and won, not on revenue.

ROOM VIII

Go-to-market

Every approach starts with the live hotel installation and a low-risk first step: a 90-day pilot at 50% of list for space owners, and a free art concept for one live project for specifiers.

SPACE OWNERS

1. Lead with the case study: the hotel installation, with photography, a partner testimonial and early engagement and sales data.
2. Use warm introductions: the founder's network, investor circles, the Jordan Hotels Association, the Private Hospitals Association and chambers of commerce.
3. Invite prospects to the wall: a short visit, a phone scan and a sample engagement report.
4. Pilot against three agreed KPIs: scans, sales, and guest or staff feedback, reported monthly.
5. Convert at day 75 to an annual program, and propose a second zone or property in the same group.

Segment playbooks

Expected time from first meeting to signed pilot

SEGMENT	PROPOSITION	ENTRY OFFER	CYCLE
Hotels	A lobby that tells a new local story every season and shows support for the community	Signature pilot with an opening evening	4–8 weeks
Corporate HQs	Employer brand and CSR: visible support for local artists	Signature program with a staff exhibition evening	6–12 weeks
Private hospitals	Patient experience and a calmer environment	Public areas first, co-funded by a sponsor or donor; sealed, wipeable framing	3–6 months
Developers	Art staging that supports unit sales; an amenity for residents	Sales-centre program with one commissioned piece	2–4 months
Restaurants and cafés	An atmosphere upgrade at no cost, plus a 10% share of sales	Essential tier at a launch rate	1–2 weeks

SPECIFIERS: THE WALL TRADE

The Wall Trade makes The Wall the easiest art supplier for a designer to recommend and for a contractor to buy from. Designers and architects pay nothing.

- Referral or discount: a disclosed 10% referral fee, or the same 10% passed to the client; the firm chooses. Contractors receive trade pricing on supply-and-install packages.
- Specification-ready catalogue: dimensions, price, lead time and high-resolution images for renders and mood boards.
- Free concept for a live project: a curated selection for one space within 5 working days.
- Commission service: site-specific work from a vetted artist, with fixed milestones.
- Turnkey supply and installation: framing, delivery, installation, insurance and handover documents.

First specifier targets

Starting points from public listings; current projects to be confirmed before approach

SPECIFIER	APPROACH	JORDAN	GULF, FROM 2028
Interior design firms	Studio visit with the catalogue; free concept for one live project; talk on local art in hospitality	IDS Interior Design Studio and boutique studios working on hotels and offices	Hospitality interior firms such as Wimberly Interiors
Architecture firms	Presentation at the Jordan Engineers Association; artist shortlists at concept stage	Bitar Consultants, Tahhan & Bushnaq	Regional offices of international practices
Main and fit-out contractors	Approved-supplier registration; art packages quoted as a BOQ line or provisional sum	Wajih Contracting, Madanat Contracting, Marwan Alkurdi & Partners	Fit-out contractors on hotel and giga-projects
International hotel designers	Reach the designer behind each new hotel opening; offer local artists for the FF&E schedule	For example, ForrestPerkins on The St. Regis Amman	The same firms on Red Sea and Riyadh projects

Finding projects early: hotel openings announced by the Ministry of Tourism, building permits, public tenders such as the IFC Amman office fit-out, and the client lists of the firms above. Individual buyers are reached through every wall: QR codes on each work, staff discount links, and previews for repeat collectors. Sponsors are approached once five venues are live.

Artists

Artist demand was confirmed during validation. The offer: work in front of people who rarely visit galleries, a real chance to sell, and 65% of every sale.

FIG. 5 Artists earn 30% more per sale than at a typical 50% gallery split

TABLE 10 What artists get

No joining fee and no exclusivity

PROBLEM TODAY	WHAT THE WALL PROVIDES
Few galleries, long waiting lists, 40–60% commission	Free to join; 65% of the sale; paid within 14 days
Audience limited to the art community	Hotel guests, tourists, executives, patients and their families
No visibility of who saw the work	Scans, views and saves per work in the artist dashboard
Framing, transport and insurance costs	Handled by The Wall; works insured while on display
No route to corporate and project work	Commissions through venues, corporates and The Wall Trade

RECRUITMENT

1. Founding roster: every artist from the validation pilots is invited as a Founding Artist, with a guaranteed first placement.
2. Open calls twice a year, with a published brief, a jury and clear selection criteria.

3 Art schools: graduate shows at Jordanian art and design faculties, and an annual Graduate Wall.

4 Associations and collectives: referral partnerships and joint open calls.

5 Galleries as partners: a referral share for represented artists who also want commercial placements.

6 Peer nominations: each roster artist nominates two peers a year.

7 Digital scouting of Jordanian, Arab and diaspora artists on Instagram and Behance.

The roster target is 60 artists in year one and 250 by year three, kept selective to protect the curation. Each roster artist is guaranteed at least two placements a year. In return, artists provide original work only, a 90-day consignment per rotation, one retail price across all channels, and rights for The Wall to photograph and promote the work.

SENSITIVITY

The variable that moves the outcome most is artworks sold per venue. The program fee sets a floor: if sales come in at half the assumed rate, EBITDA still breaks even in 2030 and reaches a 12% margin in 2031.

† Lean-launch assumption. This assumption cuts the cost of office, manpower and the app in the first year. In 2027 The Wall runs with two people (the founder plus one curator and operations lead), with no office rent or overheads, and a lean first app build of $45K instead of $90K. Installation and transport are handled by freelancers paid per rotation, already included in direct costs. Office costs start in 2028, when the team grows to 11 people with the UAE launch. Without these cuts, the raise would be about $750K.

ROOM XI

SWOT

The Wall's advantage is a validated model that no one in Jordan runs today, built on a low cost base. Its exposure is a small home market and a sales rate not yet measured at scale.

Strengths

INTERNAL

- Validated in market: a public exhibition and a signed hotel agreement
- First mover in Jordan for rotating, shoppable venue art
- Consignment model with no inventory risk
- Value for venue, artist and buyer at once
- Recurring fees plus sales upside
- QR data proves engagement, which galleries and designers cannot

Weaknesses

INTERNAL

- Sell-through per venue not yet measured at scale
- Every rotation is a physical installation
- Depends on a small curation team
- Brand not yet known to Gulf buyers
- Cash-negative until 2030

Opportunities

EXTERNAL

- Corporate and government art spending growing in the Gulf
- New hotels and giga-projects in Saudi Arabia need local identity
- Medical tourism makes private hospitals image-conscious
- Designers, architects and contractors specifying art into new projects
- Cultural sponsorship by banks and telcos; prints and office art leasing

Threats

EXTERNAL

- Gulf consultancies and galleries copy the rotation model
- Hospitality budgets cut in a regional downturn
- Damage or theft of works in public spaces
- Venues buy directly from artists
- Payment, VAT and art shipping rules differ by country

Designed in from day one: a 12-month non-circumvention clause, backed by value venues cannot get alone (rotation, insurance, data); and insurance, mounting standards and venue liability terms against damage.
